MPD's Operation Predator Net makes its 20th arrest

Registered sex offender Imlay from Jackson County latest to face charges

BY COURIER STAFF

Madison Police Department's online child solicitation investigation netted its 20th arrest since August on Friday when a Jackson County man who was already a lifetime registered sex offender in Indiana was taken into custody in downtown Madison.

Officers from MPD's Crime Suppression Team arrested Curtis James Imlay, 41, of the 1200 block of South County Road 740 West, Medora, Indiana, on alleged preliminary charges of attempted sexual misconduct with a minor and child solicitation, both Level 4 felonies, and disseminating material harmful to a minor, a Level 6 felony.

Police say Imlay traveled to Madison to meet what he thought was going to be a 14-year-old girl for sex after communicating with an MPD undercover officer on social media. Once Imlay arrived at the predetermined location — a parking lot near Fifth and Broadway streets in downtown Madison, he was taken into custody by Madison Police without incident at about 7:55 p.m. Friday.

Curtis James Imlay

Imlay is currently on the Indiana Sex Offender Registry for a prior child molestation conviction on Jan. 15, 2002, in Jackson County, for which he received an eight-year sentence and was released on Aug. 13, 2009.

Madison Police Detective Sergeant Shawn Scudder led the investigation with assistance from MPD Captain Bruce Heaton, Senior Patrolman Aaron Watson and Patrolmen Brad Demaree and Zackery Nicholson.

Imlay was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail where he is being held without bond.

Operation Predator Net is an ongoing investigation.

Madison woman injured in wreck with semi

BY MARK CAMPBELL

A 19-year-old Madison woman was flown to a Louisville hospital on Sunday night after she was injured in a two-vehicle accident in the 3500 block of West State Road 62 near the Dutch Market just outside of Hanover.

Elizabeth Jines was driving a Volkswagen coupe that collided with a tractor trailer driven by Jackie Melton, 44, of Henderson, Kentucky, causing damage to the driver's side of the car, which ended up in a ditch along the north side of the roadway.

The accident was reported at about 8:45 p.m. with reports indicating the female had suffered a neck laceration and needed to be extricated from the car.

According to Jefferson County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Josh Taylor, the accident is still under investigation and a full report was not available early Monday afternoon. However, he indicated that Jines was injured while Melton, who was driving for D&G Trucking, was not injured.

Jines was treated at the scene by first responders with the King's Daughter Health ambulance service and flown to University Hospital in Louisville by the AirMethods helicopter where her condition is unknown.

The impact was on the left side of the truck's trailer and damaged at least two wheels and tore two tires off the trailer, scattering debris over about a 50-yard area on State Road 62.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office was also assisted at the scene by Hanover Police Department and the Hanover Fire Department.

FIGHTERS BATTLE TWO BLAZES

Firefighters in Brooksburg and Dupont were both busy on Sunday with a residential fire along the Ohio River in the former and a brush fire in a farm implement lot at the latter.

Firefighters from Milton Township Volunteer Fire Department in Brooksburg were dispatched to the 7400 block of East Riverside Drive on Sunday after a report of smoke in a rental mobile home overlooking the Ohio River.

According to the MTVFD Facebook page, a female occupant who was asleep in the bedroom was awakened by her dog and narrowly escaped after breaking a window to escape the fire.

The women suffered an injury to her arm along with smoke inhalation after the blaze, which was believed to be electrical in nature,

Health officials planning COVID-19 info video

Number of cases has grown exponentially since last week

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Health officials pleaded for months for Jefferson County residents to do their part in flattening the curve of COVID-19 cases because once the virus started spreading locally, the community would likely see exponential growth like seen in other hotspots.

Jefferson County Health Officer Dr. John Hossler stopped short Monday of calling the pandemic locally out of control, but he did do something he doesn't often like to do — use statistics to quantify the impact an illness.

"We had 47 positive cases over one weekend and we've had 100 positives in the last three days," Hossler said of the current spread. "It took us from March to September in the beginning to get our 100th case. That's an idea of how much it's spreading and how the numbers are accelerating. Exponential growth is not a good thing when you're talking about an infection."

According to state statistics, Jefferson County has now recorded 828 positive cases out of 8,459 residents tested with 12 deaths and much of that increase in the past month — all significant in the spread and toll of the virus. The county's seven-day positivity rate stands at 10.8% — meaning more than one in 10 people tested is diagnosed positive — pretty much assuring that isolation is about the only way to avoid at least some exposure.

Hossler said the majority of the people who are testing positive for the coronavirus will experience mild symptoms and some are asymptomatic entirely but for those with underlying conditions the impact can be far more severe. And those who don't think they've got it can still spread it to others.

The spike in local cases probably has a lot to do with the fact that schools are back in session — just about every school in the area has at least one student, faculty member or staff member who has been infected and even more have likely been in contact with an infected person through school, church, shopping or some of the spectator events that resumed in recent weeks. As more positive cases have shown

Beaty to break for winter in December with most of Gateway finished

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The one-way traffic control devices will be removed and workers for Beaty Construction will pull out of the US 421 Gateway Madison construction site by mid-December but be back in the spring of 2021 to finish up the project in mid-April.

That was the report Kyle Beaty, the project's construction manager, gave to members of the Madison Board of Public Works Monday. Beaty noted that while the project was scheduled to be completed by this fall, delays early on related to utility issues set the work back and the company won't be able to finish 100% of the work before winter.

Beaty said all roads will be open, sidewalks and utilities finished and traffic control devices in place and operational by the time his crews and subcontractors break for winter next month. The only work that should be left to finish is the milling of the roadway and final paving and placement of road markings, which are temperature sensitive and cannot be done in the winter.

He estimated that it would be mid-April before the weather is consistently warm enough to finish the work and the estimate is for about two weeks to wrap up the remaining jobs.

Beaty also said he expects to remove the traffic control devices that have limit-started just outside the bedroom door.

Since there are no hydrants in the neighborhood, the department responded with an engine and tanker.

The fire was quickly brought under control by firefighters shortly after arriving on scene.

Milton township was assisted by the Rykers Ridge Fire Department and the Jeff-Craig Fire/Rescue from Switzerland County also responded and assisted in finding hot spots with their Thermal Imaging camera. Madison Township Fire Department was called for tanker support but was later canceled after the fire was quickly controlled.

The fire is being investigated by the Indiana Fire Marshal's Office.

Later on Sunday, firefighters with the Dupont Volunteer Fire Department were dispatched to a farm just east of Dupont when brush caught on fire in an equipment lot near a barn in the 5000 block of West County Road 1050 North and spread into a nearby wooded area.

Dupont responded with its brush truck and an engine but the blaze was quickly controlled by the brush truck.

According to the Jefferson County Property registry, the property is owned by Stanley and Mary Phillips.

up in schools, more and more schools are shifting back to virtual learning at least temporarily in an effort to stem the spread.

"A lot of our increases in positive case are being driven by the younger population and that's the good news because it doesn't seem to impact them as severely," Hossler said.

However, he noted that the wider spread also increases the likelihood that the virus will spill over into the older population and that could carry much more tragic results since older people tend to have more pre-existing conditions and are more likely to have severe infections or even fatal outcomes.

One of the ways Gov. Eric Holcomb and local officials hope to slow that spread is to take a step back and reduce the size of gatherings, consider options to limit contact and cancel events where large crowds cannot be avoided.

Last week Holcomb issued an executive order limiting crowd sizes to less than 25 people indoors and mandating masks indoors and even outdoors when 6-foot social distancing cannot be maintained. The City of Madison canceled its holiday festival, Christmas parade and tree lighting ceremony and Tuesday night's city council meeting will once again be held via Zoom with an empty council chamber.

Hossler said face masks, hand washing, social distancing and the other precautions that helped slow the spread early on are still proven ways to limit exposure — especially if adopted widely and conscientiously.

"You hear a lot of people talk about masks like they're some violation of their freedom but we have seatbelt laws and no smoking laws so it's not unprecedented when it's a matter of public safety," Hossler said. "The good thing about this is if we wear the masks, this thing will eventually go away. We probably won't have a vaccine until the spring and frontline workers and nurses will be the first to get the vaccine so everybody needs to mask up. But you can't fix stupid if they've got that mentality."

Hossler cited a recent article in the scientific journal, the Annals of Internal Medicine, on social distancing and mask wearing data modeling for three metropolitan areas that have implemented both. If residents had started social distancing and mask wearing just one week earlier, the number of positive cases would have dropped from 200,000 to 40,000 and if they had started one week later that they did, the number would have jumped from 200,000 to 1.4 million.

Hossler said the data proves that masks and social distancing are difference makers.

He noted while stats are important in preventing the spread of the virus, they don't have any control over how severe the symptoms will be if you are exposed. However, the safest course of action is to do everything you can to avoid being exposed and just not take the chance that you might get one of the severe cases rather than be one of the lucky ones who never even feel sick.

Earlier this year, health officials and city and county governmental officials were holding briefings several times weekly to keep residents informed about the pandemic. That stopped during the summer when the case load all but dried up but they are now considering new ways to educate residents on how to cope with the pandemic and deliver the information that is needed.

The Jefferson County Health Department is preparing a video for broadcast on Madison TV 15 later this week and is considering creating an email account for health care workers to field general questions on the coronavirus by residents.

However, Hossler said for those who think they have been exposed to COVID-19 or are already displaying symptoms, King's Daughters' Hospital's COVID-19 hotline remains the best source of information Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. by calling 812-801-8010.

GATEWAY

ed Harrison Street traffic to alternating one-way traffic for about the past month and install and make operational the permanent traffic lights at the intersection of Harrison and East Second Street. At that point traffic flows will be identical to what they will be when the project is completely finished.

Some additional paving and lighting will remain after that as well as some sod placement and landscaping but the project will be essentially done except for the final $1^1/_2$ inch of asphalt and road markings.

In addition to returning to normal traffic flow on Harrison Street, East Second Street, Baltimore and the connected alleys will be reopened and a hot-mix asphalt will be used to pave the pedestrian connector sidewalk to the Milton-Madison Bridge walkway from Harrison Street.

Beaty said there will be some temporary road and lane closures as work continues over the next month but that most of that will be local closures directed by a flag person. The east side of Harrison Street — curbs, sidewalks and other pedestrian and business accesses — will make up the bulk of that work.

"We're happy with how much time we were able to get back from out slow start," Beaty said. "We want to get it all cleaned up and out before Christmas and then come back for a couple of weeks in April."

Working at First Assembly of God Church going day after day, she thought what a dirty and cluttered place, and the Lord spoke to her and said, "Without it she would have had no job", if everyone was happy with their job, all would be wonderful. So for the next fifteen years she would clean the First Assembly of God Church in Madison and would volunteer at People that Love Food Pantry. After her husband Ray was transferred to Yuma, Arizona she joined him there on April 18, 1995 and she would work for Mary Watson Realty and would clean the homes before they were sold, as well as babysitting for many families. They became very active members of River Valley Community Church in Madison at this time. # Cubs pull away from Switzerland, 51-33

Nutley carries Madison to big 4th quarter

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison blew open a close game with a 16-2 closing run to beat Switzerland County 51-33 on Friday for the Cubs' first win of the season.

Madison led virtually the entire game, but it wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Cubs were finally able to get some breathing room. Led by Jade Nutley — who scored 14 of her game-high 31 points in the fourth quarter — the Cubs held Switzerland scoreless in the frame until the final minute to power to the win.

"I felt like we had a really good first quarter and a really good fourth quarter but those two in the middle were a little rough," Madison coach Sonja Bowyer said. "But I've got to hand it to Switz. The score does not reflect the type of game this was. I looked at my girls at the start of the fourth and I said this is the time when you decide what kind of game this is going to be. I wish they would have decided a little earlier in the game, but I'm glad that they did."

Madison (1-2) did not look sharp in its first two games of the season but showed what kind of team it could be at times on Friday against a Switzerland team that had rocked South Dearborn in its season opener just 22 hours earlier.

The two teams took turns making runs at each other through the first three quarters. A 9-2 run to close the first quarter staked Madison to a 17-10 lead but Switzerland opened the second with nine-straight points of its own to go up 19-17. The Cubs answered with a 9-3 run to take a 26-22 lead into halftime.

David Campbell

Switzerland County's Maddie Duvall (12) has her shot blocked by Madison's Jade Nutley during Friday's game in Vevay.

Madison pushed its lead to eight (30-22) early in the third on baskets by Nutley and Taylor Lynch but Switzerland roared back with a free throw by Maddie Duvall and two straight baskets from Nora Hankins to get back to within three and the Cubs led 35-31 at the end of the quarter.

Showing the fatigue of playing a second game in as many days this early in the season, Switzerland simply couldn't keep up in the fourth. Nutley opened the frame with a layup, then drained her second 3-pointer of the game to ignite Madison's closing run. Three more baskets by the Cub star pushed the lead to 45-31 and they never looked back.

Madison's Breck Ralston (on ground) reaches for a loose ball during a scrum in the Cubs' win over Switzerland County on Friday.

"I give Sonja a lot of credit, she went to that 1-2-2 and we just had a hard time countering," Switzerland coach Mark Boggs said. "Jade Nutley is as good advertised. The kid can score from anywhere. A couple of times the ball bounced right in her direction and when that happens, it's going into the basket. I can think of a couple of times where we got a hand on the ball and it ended up in Double Zero's hands. And guess what? When that happens, she's going to score."

Jessie Duvall ended Madison's 10-0 run with a basket with 1:27 to play but Nutley hit four free throws over the next minute and Mary Johnson put in a basket as the Cubs pulled away.

Nutley finished with an impressive game and flirted with a triple double, scoring 31 points on 12-of-19 shooting and pulling down 12 rebounds while blocking six shots. Lynch also had a strong overall game, with six points, six rebounds, eight assists and four steals. Breck Ralston scored six points on a pair of 3-pointers and Cameran Cahall had four points.

Hankins had an impressive night for Switzerland County. Despite being forced to go up against Nutley all night, the 6-foot-1 junior had 14 points and nine rebounds to lead the Pacers.

"She was an animal. I'm so proud of Nora. She has worked so hard," Boggs said. "I'm not surprised though. She has had some really strong practices and I knew that she was going to have some big games for us. I see more of them down the road."

Jessie Duvall, Maddie Duvall and Keirstan Oeffinger each scored six points for Switzerland.

Switzerland returned to action on Saturday for its third game in as many days but picked up a 48-25 win over Henryville to improve to 2-1 on the season.

Jessie Duvall had 13 points, three assists and three rebounds to lead the Pacers while Oeffinger had 11 points, three assists and three steals. Maddie Duvall had four points, four rebounds and five steals, and Hankins had seven points and 14 rebounds.

Madison returns to action on Tuesday when the Cubs host South Dearborn. Madison then heads to Salem for a matchup with the Class 3A No. 1 and defending state runner-up Lions on Saturday.

Switzerland hosts Rising Sun on Friday in a non-conference matchup and heads to Franklin County on Saturday.

Carter powers CAM past Cornerstone in season opener

BY COURIER STAFF

Christian Academy of Madison shrugged off a slow start to pull away to a 50-30 win over Cornerstone Christian Academy in boys basketball Friday at home.

The Defenders' lack of practice after two weeks of virtual learning showed in the game's first eight minutes and CAM led only 9-8 after the first quarter. But a 21-3 second quarter blew open the game and the Defenders cruised from there, leading by more than 30 before clearing the bench.

Junior Clay Carter scored 21 points, pulled down 12 rebounds and had five assists to lead Christian Academy while Chase Hoskins had 14 points and seven rebounds. Jaxon Miller added four points and 13 rebounds.

Jeremiah Hayden scored 18 points and had six rebounds to lead Cornerstone.

CAM, now 1-0 on the season, heads to Louisville on Friday to take on Micah Christian. The Defenders will then host Pleasant Christian on Saturday.

Penix, Fryfogle, No. 10 Indiana blank Michigan State, 24-0

BY NOAH TRISTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST LANSING, Mich. — For Ty Fryfogle and No. 10 Indiana, each game brings something new to be excited about.

Fryfogle had 11 catches for 200 yards — surpassing career highs he'd set just a week earlier — and the Hoosiers handled Michigan State 24-0 on Saturday. Indiana remained unbeaten, turning what looked like a potential trap game into an easy win.

Now, the Hoosiers can look ahead to a showdown next weekend at No. 3 Ohio State.

"It doesn't matter what everybody says about us," said Fryfogle, who had seven catches for 142 yards against Michigan last weekend. "We're going to keep doing us and keep executing each and every week, getting better every week. That's what's exciting about this team. We're getting better each and every week."

Michael Penix Jr. threw for 320 yards and hit Fryfogle for two touchdown passes.

Penix also threw two interceptions in the first half, but that didn't matter much. The Spartans (1-3, 1-3 Big Ten) were just as sloppy — to the point where quarterback Rocky Lombardi was pulled in the second quarter.

Fryfogle did most of his damage in the first two quarters, when all the game's scoring occurred. Michigan State was shut out at home for the first time since a 31-0 loss to Michigan in 1985.

Indiana has won its first four Big Ten games for the first time since 1987, and the Hoosiers beat Michigan State for the Old Brass Spittoon for only the second time in the last 12 meetings.

"We sat down at the beginning of the year with our leadership council, come up with our goals," Indiana coach Tom Allen said. "One of the major things that guys wanted was, win our trophy games."

Since beating rival Michigan on Oct. 31, the Spartans have lost their last two games by a combined 73-7.

Michigan State and Indiana combined for five turnovers in the first 18:15, but only the Hoosiers showed any ability to take advantage. They went 50 yards in seven plays after Lombardi's first interception, taking a 7-0 lead on an 8-yard run by Stevie Scott.

NCAA in talks with Indianapolis about possibility of hosting all of March Madness

BY JOHN MARSHALL
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

The NCAA announced Monday it plans to hold the entire 2021 men's college basketball tournament in one geographic location to mitigate the risks of COVID-19 and is in talks with Indianapolis to be the host city.

The Final Four is already set to be held in Indianapolis next April and the NCAA has its headquarters in the Indiana capital.

Early-round games had been scheduled at 13 predetermined sites across the country, with regionals in Minneapolis, Denver, Memphis, Tennessee, and New York City, with the First Four in Dayton, Ohio.

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee determined moving those to one location would allow a safe and controlled environment with venues, practice facilities, lodging and medical resources all near one another.

"Trying to run an event of 68 teams, 67 games over the course of three weeks in a safe and responsible way really needed to be managed in a much controlled, singular environment," NCAA senior vice president of basketball Dan Gavitt told NCAA.com.

"The committee has made a really sound decision here, disappointing as it is to go away from our valued hosts for 13 different sites from First Four through the regionals," he said. "Condensing this to one geographic area that we can do it in a more safe and responsible way is where we need to be."

The NCAA set a Nov. 25 start date for the season as it tries to bounce back from the two lucrative tournaments being canceled last spring due to the coronavirus pandemic. Cancellation of the NCAA Tournament led to a $375 million shortfall in revenue distributed to member institutions, putting a huge strain on athletic departments across the country.

Schools have scrambled to fill schedules while the coronavirus has wreaked havoc on college football, causing the cancellation of more than 60 games. Multiple basketball programs are currently on pause due to COVID-19 and the Ivy League announced last week the cancellation of winter sports, including men's and women's basketball.

Gavitt said there is no plan to change the Nov. 25 start date and the plan is for the NCAA Tournament to be played in March and April as scheduled. No determination has been made on whether fans will be allowed, a decision that will also face individual conferences as their tournaments approach in March.

NCAA President Mark Emmert earlier floated the idea of playing the NCAA Tournament in a bubble after the NBA and NHL managed to complete their seasons with similar setups.

New relationship has changed mom's personality

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am in my 40s, married, with children. My parents were married for 38 years before my father's passing six years ago. My siblings and I had discussed the idea of our mother finding new love at some point. We felt it was inevitable because our mother, honestly, would be quite the catch. She is loving, funny, smart, kind, dependable, hardworking, a great cook and debt-free (thanks, Dad!). All qualities that we were grateful to have in a role model for ourselves and our children. So, we were not surprised when she told us two years ago that she was "talking" to someone.

Within the first year of the new relationship, this person gave our mother what we considered many red flags — narcissism, lying and infidelity, to name a few. She broke it off for a month, only to take him back, with her attitude being to forgive and forget. Over the past two years, our mom has seemingly turned into someone we do not recognize.

She is ill-tempered during any conversation, unreliable, self-centered and co-dependent. I believe she acts this way because we do not approve of her man. We do want her to be happy. But as people who care for her, we also feel she deserves better. She is not open to discussing any of this as a family.

Where did our mom go? Is there an age or moment when one decides to stop being a parent? Should we stop trying to see her as our parent and start seeing her as another adult with issues? In relationships, are we together because we are similar, or are we similar because we are together? — Life Upside-Down

Dear Life Upside-Down: It sounds like you had an incredible role model and upbringing. No, a mother never stops being a mother, but at a certain age, or after a traumatic event such as the death of your father, relationships and roles can change and grow. Your desire for your mom to be happy is a by-product of your love for her, and you are right to be concerned for her happiness.

A happy person is not ill-tempered, unreliable and self-centered. This dramatic shift in personality is a warning sign that something unhealthy is going on in her new relationship. They say that love is blind, but when you are being manipulated and abused by a narcissistic partner, you can't be blind to bad behavior.

However, it's your role to continue to be there for your mom unconditionally. If she gets angry at you or cancels appointments, then meet her with kindness and forgiveness. Maybe see if you can go for a mother/daughter day together. When you are alone, ask her how she is doing and really listen to her. If you feel that there is any type of abuse going on, encourage her to seek immediate help. Losing her spouse of 38 years is a traumatic event. A professional therapist could help her regain independence and see this relationship clearly.

Teach a man to fish

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My husband and I are 72 and retired. We have always had a special relationship with our 27-year-old grandson, bailing him out financially whenever he was in a tight situation. However, he just recently asked for big help with his rent, utilities and other expenses since he changed jobs again. His new job sounds very promising, but history tells us that something bad will happen with this opportunity as well.

He did not take our refusal to help him very well, and my husband is feeling guilty about not helping him out, although we really cannot afford this any longer. I feel we had no choice and that he must learn to deal with life's problems himself. Am I right? Will he learn? — Enabler No More

Dear Enabler No More: Yes, you are right. He is a 27-year-old adult and very capable of providing for himself. This was the kindest thing you could do for him and his self-esteem — in the long run. He might be mad and have a little tantrum, but once he is over it, he will realize that he can indeed take care of himself and will hopefully apologize to you for having acted like a child. Give a man a fish and he will always ask for more; teach him to fish and he can provide dinner for himself and his entire family.

Dear Annie: This is a message to the girl who was cyberbullied: I know you have a beautiful spirit because you thought the best about the girls and didn't understand their ugliness. Internal beauty gets more beautiful with time, physical beauty less so. (That doesn't mean you're not beautiful outside, too.) The main girl and her followers are attacking you because they see that you are different. Using their experience and vocabulary, the closest they can come is "nerd." It is your choice to be bullied or not, not theirs. If you're not bullied, they will be wasting their time, and people will see them as they are.

Don't look at their stuff, and don't pay attention to them in school. To be more "nerdy," write, "I forgive you, and I am moving on." Help another good nerdy girl, as two are stronger together. It will encourage others and open up a whole new world with the kind of people you want to be with. They are out there. — Concerned Grandmother

Dear Concerned: Thank you for your beautiful letter. Focusing on the beauty inside of people will lead to a much happier, more fun and more joyful life. Your vibe attracts your tribe, and you are encouraging this beautiful young girl to find her tribe. I love it!
